

An illustration of the Pied Piper leading children away from a town. The Piper, a man in a red tunic and a tall, pointed hat, is playing a pipe. A group of children, dressed in various colorful dresses and tunics, are following him. The scene is set in a lush, green landscape with trees and a path. The overall style is reminiscent of a classic children's book illustration.

Rats everywhere

People's Meeting of Hamelin

---

- How can we get rid of the rats?

People of Hamelin,
listen to me!
Do what I say
and fight
with me!

People of Hamelin will never flee!
Tell all, tell all,
we will follow thee!

An interview

---

The piper: you need to work out a plan to show that you can do this job with your pipe. You also need to ask for something for your work.

The mayor: you need to ask questions to interview the piper. You also need to offer something for the helper.

Story whoosh

- So the piper went out into the street. He blew on his pipe and he looked very happy as he played and played and played.
- Next the rats came running and jumping out of the houses. They followed the piper all the way to the music.
- The piper danced in the street, and the rats went with him.
- The piper danced down to the river playing his pipe, and the rats went with him.
- When the piper jumped into a boat the rats jumped into the water. But the rats could not swim.
